SAGAN BACK, REFUSES TO SAY WHETHER HE MARRIED MIVIE. GOULD

"Why Do You Not Ask Her?" He Inquires on Arriving From Philadelphia and Admitting His Identity to Evening World Reporter.

Mme. Anna Gould was seen by an Evening World reporter this afternoon as she was leaving the Fifth avenue home of her sister, Miss Helen Gould, to go driving with her little sons. When told that the Prince de Sagan had not denied that he was married to her or engaged to be married, she re-

"Mme. Anna Gould denies any engagement to the Pulnce de Sagan. That is all I have to say."

Prince Helie de Sagan returned to this city to-day from his retire- dress ment in Philadelphia and was forced out of the shell of his incognito and led into an extensive interview in which he refused to admit or deny that he was already the husband of Mme. Anna Gould.

"Why do you not ask her?" and "Have you asked Mme. Gould?"

The youthfully clad nobleman of fifty declared that he was in this ner that aroused his suspicions. Every city for at least one month's stay and probably five months, and he southe away from the vicinity, to turn said this with a grimness that showed he has no intention of giving up the up again a little later.
